2. Segment Your List

“You Don’t Want To Send Everything You’ve Got To Everyone On Your List”

2. Segment Your List

Segmentation can make a huge difference. To use segmentation properly, as well as the name and email address, you should gather information on:

- Gender
- Location
- Marital Status
- Age
- Career/Job/Business Name
- Interests
- Products/Services bought from you
- Past/Current/Prospective Customers

By putting people into different lists in your Email Management or CRM System, you will quickly see a dramatic improvement in your results.

3. Automate Your Follow-up

Nobody expects to wait for a response these days. They expect to click a button and have any relevant information sent to them inbox straightaway.

Autoresponders automatically follow up with your subscribers or provide them with more information about your products or services.

An Autoresponder stores & sends out a series of pre-written emails scheduled to be sent at specific intervals after someone has been added to your mailing list.

If a prospect visits your website at any time of the day or night from anywhere in the world, you can respond straight away thanking them for their enquiry & deliver any information they've specifically requested.

You can drip feed information about your business over any time scale you choose & even put in place a process that automatically follows-up with them forever!

An Autoresponder will ensure that new prospects are taken care of immediately & are followed-up for life.

3. Structure of Response-Boosting Email Sequences

Create interest & desire for your product/service.

Multiple messages all extolling the benefits of a single product will help build interest & desire for it.

Build value for your product/service.

Your email sequence should repeatedly point out the main benefits of the product, which builds value for your offer (and helps prospects to justify their purchase).

Overcome Objections.

When people aren't really sure if they should buy something, they'll find a solid reason for not purchasing it. Your job is to overcome these natural objections & strip away all their excuses for not buying from you.

Prove your Claims.

Sometimes people just don't believe your claims. You need to provide evidence by way of testimonials or "before" and "after" case studies from satisfied customers who've enjoyed great results.

4. Something To Think About!

- What do you want your campaign to achieve? Sales? Referrals? Goodwill?
- What do you want people to do after reading your email?
- Who exactly is it going to? Picture them sat at their desk reading it!
- What are you offering? Make it clear.
- What's worked before with similar offers?
- Always send it from a real person, never use admin@ or info@ for outgoing messages.

5. Your Subject Line Is Vital

Remember:
They'll Only
Click If They

5. Your Subject Line Is Vital

The biggest challenge that you face with email marketing is actually getting them to open your email in the first place!

Writing the most amazing, customer converting email ever is pointless if nobody opens it because of a lousy subject line.

Write your Subject Line AFTER you've written the body copy of the email & find a way to personalise it, if you can.

You must make your readers to want to open it!

5. Open Inducing Subject Lines

1. Offer a Benefit - “Increase your revenue by 37% with this little trick”
2. Ask a Question - “Are you suffering from a bad back?”
3. Urgency & Scarcity - “Only 2 hours and 47 minutes left...”
4. Unusual Nos. or %’s - “How 88% of homeowners are wasting £37/mth”
5. Self-interest - “How Facebook users can increase interest in their business”
6. Use Stories - “My staff think I’ve gone crazy...”
7. Celebrity - “What Richard Branson taught me...”
8. Invitation - “Your Private Invitation to a Unique, Closed Door Event”
9. Use News Articles - “Teresa May’s £2,475 small business bonus tax cut”

3d Consulting Services

6. Getting More Opens

According to Litmus, “you have just 3-4 seconds to grab your readers attention & interest them enough to open and read your email”.

When it comes to emails, timing is everything. Of course it depends on your industry & audience but for professional service providers often the best times to send emails are between 8:30am - 10:00am, 2:30pm - 3:30pm or 8:00pm - Midnight.

A proven psychological way to get up to 25% more emails opened is to personalise the subject line with the readers first name. It’s not because they’ll think it's a personal email, it’s just because when you scan through your inbox guess what always jumps out at you on the screen... Your name!

Using symbols (emojis) can also be very effective to attract attention! 😄

7. Getting More Clicks Tricks

Remember:
A Click
Is A Step Forward

7. Getting More Clicks Tricks

Whether it's taking the reader to a blog post, a sales video, a landing page, a survey etc. the job of the email copy is to get them to click.

Use Video Image Links

Include an interesting image from your video with a play button on it.

Use Surveys & Poll Image Links

The key here is that the answer to the survey/poll question is clear on the page the person lands on when they click it (else you frustrate them!).

GIFs

GIFs are essentially a bridge between images and video. They look like a video but can be embedded in emails! <http://ezgif.com> is just one of many free online tools that you can use to quickly turn video into GIFs.

8. Interesting/Relevant Content

Poor Content is the No.1 Reason People Unsubscribe

Images

Images break up an email & people like pics - but don't forget to make it clickable.

Tone

Keep emails conversational & light. Reveal your personality. Build relationships.

Make it Personal

Aim to make it read like you're only writing to them & Personalise throughout.

Call to Action

Make sure you spell out exactly what you want the reader to do. Click/Call.

Long or Short?

Whatever works for you, but right now shorter eMails are getting better results.

When you take email marketing seriously, you look at your reports for each email & are constantly aiming to improve your key stats...

10. Constant & Never Ending Improvement (CANI)!

How do you know if what you've written is any good?

A/B Split Test It!

For Example...

Imagine you've got a mailing a list of 2,000 & you're promoting a special introductory 6 week coaching program offer for £250 which usually gets a 3% conversion rate.

You send out your mailing & get a 30% open rate, which means that 600 people open it. With a 3% conversion rate that gives you

$$600 * 3\% = 18 \text{ clients @ } £250\text{ea} = £4,500$$

Not Bad - But what if you'd run a Split Test on 2 Subject Lines first...

10. Constant & Never Ending Improvement (CANI)!

This time, before mailing your promotion to everyone, you send out a test email to two sample groups of 100, with 2 different Subject lines.
30 People open the email with Subject Line A (30% open rate)
But 50 People open the email with Subject Line B (50% open rate)
So you now send the rest of the mailing out (1800) using Subject Line B
Let's see what difference that makes...

Now, when you send out your mailing 980 people open it:
(100@30% +100@50% +1800@50% )

$980 * 3\% = 29 \text{ clients @ } \pounds 250\text{ea} = \pounds 7,250$

Which is 11 Extra Clients &  $\pounds 2,750$  extra revenue (i.e. 61% more) just by running one simple A/B Split test on the Subject Line beforehand.

10. Constant & Never Ending Improvement (CANI)!

Over Time You Should Test...

- Subject Lines
- Calls to Action
- Video Lengths
- P.S's
- Openings & Closings
- Sent Times

And never think of a test as being a failure.

Because you can only ever improve what you test & measure.

One of the most valuable ways to offer information is through a live event such as a webinar or even an offline workshop held in a hotel or other conference room. These sorts of events are also great ways to generate leads or even segment an existing list.

Highly-Effective Email Calls to Action (CTA's) & When You Should Use Them

One-Time Offer CTA

The idea here is to present a one-time offer. If the prospect doesn't take advantage of the offer, they'll never see that particular offer again. This special offer might include a discount, bonus products, or both.

TIP: If you want to create even more urgency with a one-time offer, then put a countdown timer next to the offer and give your prospect 60 minutes to order before the offer disappears forever.

1. You'll only see this offer one-time, so order in the next 60 minutes before it's gone for good!
2. This is a one-time offer that you can only take advantage of today, so order now if you don't want to be disappointed!

Upsell/Cross-Sell CTA

If you've already convinced your reader to purchase a product, then your next step is to persuade them to purchase something else. Ideally this call to action should go on the order page itself, although in some cases you may offer it as an additional option right inside an email, particularly in a follow-up (post-purchase) Thank You email.
